Scottish PEN is delighted to announce new work from a variety of contemporary Scottish writers. All PEN members, this project highlights the literary talent in Scotland today.

Departures and Arrivals/Homecoming records specially commissioned work on the theme of 'departures, arrivals, journeys and homecoming'. Interpreting these themes and using them in the most literal and metaphorical ways through poetry, short story and non-fiction, the writers read extracts from their own work.

Launched at this year's Edinburgh International Book Festival (August 2009), extracts from the work of twenty-three Scottish writers are included on a double CD available at festivals and direct from Scottish PEN. In addition to this the internationally renowned writer, Margaret Atwood, vice-president of International PEN, has recorded an extract from an, as yet unpublished, short story about her Scottish roots.

Scottish PEN is part of International PEN, a dynamic worldwide association of writers pledged to protect freedom of expression everywhere. There are 145 centres in over 100 countries fostering international links and cooperation across frontiers. PEN is an acronym derived from the initial letters of Poets, Playwrights, Editors, Essayists and Novelists.
